All live poultry exhibitions, sales and swap meets banned until further notice

Last month I informed you that we here at the West Virginia Department of Agriculture are monitoring, on a daily basis, the current avian influenza (AI) outbreak that has been moving during the past several months from the West Coast towards the Eastern part of the country.

As of the printing of this month's bulletin there has been no sign or any confirmed cases of AI in West Virginia. However, we believe as a necessary precaution that we must halt all live poultry exhibitions, sales and swap meets in order to protect our valuable poultry industries. The ban went into effect May 22, 2015.

While understanding that this does create some hardships, the poultry industry in West Virginia is a vital economic driver in the Potomac and Greenbrier Valley regions and it is our responsibility and duty to put into place practices that will limit potential exposure to flocks throughout the state.

The spread of AI during this outbreak has been linked to wild birds and the flyways and waterways they frequent. Therefore, since typical backyard flocks tend to roam outdoors they are more likely to come into contact with carriers. Commercial poultry are housed exclusively indoors, which reduces the chance of coming into contact with wild birds.

While no protective measures are guaranteed to completely stop the spread of AI, the biosecurity practices we have in place give us the best chance of limiting exposure.

FALLEN SOLDIERS

Honored at Tree Planting Ceremony

They died too early. Forty-three West Virginia military members have been killed in the line of duty in Iraq and Afghanistan since Sept. 11, 2001. On April 25, they were remembered during a tree planting ceremony at Zion Heritage Farm in Marion County.

Heather Neill, the owner of the farm, donated several acres behind her historic house near Prickett's Fort for the memorial orchard.

"You don't know what kind of honor you've given me. You have no idea," she said. "I'm going to care for your trees."

The WVDA's Veterans and Warriors to Agriculture program supplied the apple trees. Veterans and family members of those fallen provided the manpower to dig the holes.

"I'm here in respect of these fallen veterans. This is the least I can do," explained Bradley George of Morgantown, a Vietnam vet.

One of the 43 men and women honored was Lance Cpl. John Thomas Byrd II, a native of Fairview. The Marine was killed on Oct. 31, 2004 during the first push into Fallujah, Iraq. His cousin Adam Cantrell was there to dig the hole and plant Byrd's tree.

"I'm here to represent the family. I couldn't see myself anywhere else today," Cantrell said.

Emma Johnson of Charleston lost the grandson she raised during an attack in Karbala, Iraq, June 18, 2005. Lance Cpl. Adam Crumpler was just 19. Johnson wasn't able to dig a hole or plant the tree.

Agriculture a way of life for Preston FFA Student and fifth generation farmer

He comes from royalty but Shane Christopher is just a farm boy at heart. The Preston High School senior is the reigning King Buckwheat, a title he earned last year, representing farmers at the 73rd Buckwheat Festival in Kingwood. It's a family tradition. His uncle Steve was King Buckwheat in 1988 and great-uncle Bob Christopher in 1962. His father was first runner-up.

Agriculture is a way of life for the teen who grew up on a 400-acre farm near Valley Point in Preston County.

"I've been riding tractors since I was two years old. I've been around farming my whole life. I've always enjoyed it," says Christopher. "I'm going to WVU next year and I'm going to major in pre-veterinary medicine. Then hopefully I'll get into veterinary school and become a large animal vet."

His path is clear but getting there hasn't been easy. He works long hours on the family farm where they raise 60 head of cattle and grow several crops.

"On the farm I do everything from making hay and planting crops. I raise a couple club cattle to show. We've started working with some embryo transplants and we bought a couple Herefords from out west that we're playing with," explained Christopher.

He has a jam-packed schedule.

"We go out in the morning and do the feeding. We've got to feed the show string. I'll come home from school, then I'm at the barn until dark. I also help my uncle. He's raising club goats," says Christopher.

On top of that, Christopher is a member of the National Honor Society and, most importantly, a member of FFA. He joined in 9th grade just like his father, uncle, and his grandfather before him.

"I wanted to be part of FFA because agriculture has always been a huge part of my life," says Christopher.

Preston High School FFA Advisor Ron Wilson has high praise for his student.

"Shane is a very responsible young man who has several irons in the fire and he's on top of his game," says Wilson. "My goal is to teach work habits more than anything else. There are so many skills students can pick up on."

It's a lesson Christopher takes to heart. As part of FFA, he raises club cattle and shows them across the state.

"It's a lot of work! You've got to feed them properly. You have to work with them every night," stresses Christopher.

However, he doesn't do it alone. He has a lot of help from his family.

"My mentors have been my dad and my grandpa. They've taught me a lot through the years. I keep learning from them," explains Christopher.

He credits FFA with helping to make friends and improve his public speaking. That came in handy when vying for King Buckwheat.

His Uncle Steve is a meat inspector with the WVDA and works with the FFA students, including Christopher, at the school's slaughter house. He says the entire family is extremely proud of what the future farmer has already accomplished.

"It's a big honor to have the tradition carried on through the family with Shane. He'll make it in whatever he does!"

Shane says he plans to become the 5th generation of Christopher's to work the land and raise livestock. He's ready to wear the crown.

USDA Seeks Applications for Grants to Help Socially-Disadvantaged Producers

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is now accepting grant applications from groups that provide technical assistance to socially disadvantaged groups in rural areas. Examples of technical assistance are conducting feasibility studies, developing business and strategic plans, and providing leadership training.

Eligible applicants include groups of cooperatives, cooperative development centers and individual cooperatives that serve socially-disadvantaged groups. Also, the majority of the governing body of the organization must be comprised of individuals who are members of socially-disadvantaged groups.

USDA plans to make up to $3 million in grants available. The maximum award under this notice is $175,000. More information on how to apply can be found on page 28937 of the May 20 Federal Register. Applications submitted by mail must be postmarked by July 20, 2015. Electronic applications must be submitted at www.grants.gov no later than midnight Eastern Time July 14, 2015.

For any questions about AI, I encourage you to call our offices in Moorefield at 304-538-2397 during regular business hours. You may also call 304-558-2214 after regular business hours and leave a message.

Ag investment opportunities being pursued

One of the major initiatives that I vowed to work diligently on after taking office two years ago was to pursue private businesses to make sizeable investments into Agriculture in our state.

We have been working daily on a number of these significant economic development projects and we are seeing progress.

I hope sometime later this year to be able to provide you with more details and specifics as the work continues.

Agriculture must be viewed by all of our state leaders as a real part of our economic diversification because the opportunities really are there for major development in West Virginia Agriculture during the next several decades.

Captive Cervid Farm applications now available

The application for current and potential Captive Cervid farmers is now available from the West Virginia Department of Agriculture.

Earlier this year the West Virginia Legislature passed legislation that now gives the responsibility of control and regulation of captive cervids to the WVDA. The law does require current license holders to reapply and update all information without any additional fees being charged.

The form and instructions for applying can be accessed electronically by going to this link http://www.wvagriculture.org/images/index/Application\_Captive\_Cervid.pdf or by contacting the WVDA at 304-558-3200.

The transition of responsibilities for Captive Cervid farming, from the DNR to WVDA, is underway and the application process for all interested farmers is the next step. The rule has been submitted for public comment and we have received some very good input and response from many of you.

We are growing Agriculture in West Virginia, thanks again for all your support.

Beef BEEF
for Father's Day coming to a town near you!
Funded in part by the Beef Checkoff.

The WVDA and WV Beef Checkoff are once again teaming up and traveling across West Virginia to five select cities in order to promote WV Beef as part of your Father's Day menu. Free sampling of local beef is scheduled at each event.

The beef industry is vital to our state's food chain and contributes millions of dollars to our community.

The five-city tour kicks off in Charleston at the Capitol Market on June 3, from 11 a.m. – 1 p.m.

The next four events are scheduled for:

- JUNE 6: Taylor Farm Market at Inwood (11 a.m.-1 p.m.);
- JUNE 12: Parkersburg Farmer's Market (5 p.m.-7 p.m.);
- June 16: Clarksburg, Jackson Square (downtown) 11 a.m.-1 p.m.
- JUNE 19: during Beckley's Fridays in the Park (11:00 a.m.-1 p.m.);

Watch your local news media, and follow the WVDA on Twitter (@WVDeptofAg) and Facebook (West Virginia Department of Agriculture) for more details.

Incorporate Some Dairy Deliciousness into Your Diet

Jean Smith, Director, WVDA Marketing & Development Division

June is Dairy Month and it is our opportunity to thank those folks involved in the dairy industry for their hard work and dedication to our safe food supply. June is also the time for fresh grown fruits and vegetables to become abundant for many areas of our state. As we enjoy these foods let's all remember, No Farm No Food! – Happy Cooking!

Recipes

Oatmeal Crusted Breakfast Pizza

- 2 cups rolled oats (ground into 1½ cups oat flour)
- 1 cup + ¼ cup whole wheat flour (or white flour)
- ½ teaspoon sea salt
- 1 teaspoon dried basil
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 3 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
- ¾ cup water (adjust amount as needed to reach described texture)

Topping options:

- 4 slices of turkey bacon
- ½ beefsteak tomato, chopped

- ¼ white onion, chopped
- 1½ cups baby spinach
- ½ cup bell pepper, chopped
- 3 eggs
- ¾ cup reduced-fat mozzarella cheese, shredded
- 2 tablespoons Parmesan cheese, shredded
- 4 fresh basil leaves, chopped
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- Optional toppings: other veggies of your choice like olives, mushrooms, thinly sliced Roma tomatoes, minced garlic

Using a food processor grind the oats into a fine flour (measure 1½ cups of flour). Mix dry ingredients (minus ¼ cup of the white whole wheat flour) in a bowl. Add olive oil and mix to combine. Slowly add water and continue mixing until dough is fully mixed. The dough will be sticky and wet at this point. Add in the last ¼ cup of whole wheat flour and incorporate it into the dough using your hands.

Spread dough 1/8 of an inch thick using a rolling pin on a pizza stone or on a parchment paper lined baking sheet.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees and prebake pizza crust for 12 minutes.

In a bowl, whisk eggs and set aside. In a skillet cook bacon according to cooking directions. Once done, place on a paper towel and set aside. In the pan that the bacon was cooked in, add onion and pepper and sauté for about 3 minutes. Add tomatoes, spinach, salt and pepper and sauté until spinach is wilted.

Reduce the heat to low and pour eggs over the veggie mixture. Cook for about 30-45 seconds just until the eggs barely begin to set.

Pour egg mixture over crust, top with crumbled bacon and then sprinkle on cheese.

Bake for 15 minutes.

Remove from oven, sprinkle with chopped fresh basil, slice and serve. One pizza makes 8 slices.

Recipes

Russian Stroganoff

- 2 pounds flank steak, cut into 1/2-inch strips
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 2 cups brown mushrooms, sliced
- 1 cup yellow onion, peeled, sliced
- 2 cups lactose-free non-fat milk
- 2 cups water

- 1 (1.2 ounce) package brown gravy mix
- 1 cup frozen peas
- 1 cup non-fat plain Greek yogurt
- 6 cups whole wheat egg noodles, cooked
- ¾ cup (5 ounces) white Cheddar cheese, shredded

In a large stew pot, cook flank steak in oil over medium-high heat for 3 to 5 minutes; remove from pot and reserve.

Add mushrooms and onion, cook over medium-high heat for 3 to 5 minutes or until onions begin to soften; return beef to pot.

Add milk and water, bring to a boil over medium-high heat; add gravy mix, stirring until incorporated.

Reduce heat to medium-low and simmer, uncovered, for 20 to 30 minutes or until beef is tender and sauce is thickened; add peas.

Remove from heat; stir in yogurt.

Serve ½ cup of stroganoff over ½ cup of egg noodles topped with two tablespoons Cheddar cheese.

Tip: If preparing stew in advance, do not add yogurt or peas until reheating.

Recipes

Colby Cobb Salad

Dressing:

- 2 cups fat-free plain yogurt, divided
- 4 large basil leaves
- ¼ cup parsley, stems removed
- 2 tablespoons chopped chives
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon honey

Dressing:

Place 1 cup of yogurt, basil, parsley, chives, lemon juice, honey and pepper in a blender or food processor. Cover and pulse until smooth (dressing will be green in color). Pour yogurt mixture into a medium bowl; stir in remaining yogurt and mayonnaise until just blended;

- 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 2 tablespoons fat-free mayonnaise
- ½ teaspoon salt (optional)
- ¼ teaspoon additional pepper (optional)

refrigerate until ready to serve.

Note: Dressing may be prepared up to 2 days ahead and stored in an airtight container in the refrigerator.

Salad:

Place lettuce at the bottom of a bowl and sprinkle the tomatoes, onion, cucumber, turkey, bacon bits, egg and Colby cheese on top. Just before serving, pour dressing over salad and toss lightly.

Recipes

Creamy Vegetable Chowder

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 3 cups fat free, reduced-sodium chicken broth
- 1 (16-ounce) bag frozen vegetable blend
- 2 cups 1% lowfat milk
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
- 1 teaspoon basil
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper

Melt butter in large saucepan. Add onion and cook until tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in chicken broth and vegetables and bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered 5 minutes.

Puree 2½ cups of vegetable and broth mixture in blender until smooth and return to saucepan. Stir in milk, cheese and seasonings and simmer 10 minutes. Serve with additional shredded cheese, if desired.

Yield: 1 cup per serving

WVDA EMPLOYEE RECEIVES COMMENDATION AWARD

Congratulations go out to WVDA Nutrient Management Specialist Jason Dalrymple. He is the 2015 recipient of the Soil and Water Conservation Society's Commendation Award. It's given to Society members in recognition of distinguished service. As past-president of the WV chapter, Jason developed and coordinated nutrient management and conservation planning trainings for chapter members along with state and federal employees. He'll receive his award at the 70th International Soil and Water Conservation Conference set for late July in Greensboro, North Carolina. Dalrymple has been with the WVDA since June 2009.

Potomac State Students Design Portable Vegetable Washing Station

The plan was simple. Build a first-of-its-kind mobile vegetable post-harvest trailer. For agriculture students at Potomac State College in Mineral County, the challenge was "make it work."

The specs called for a portable vegetable washing and packaging station. The project, a partnership with the West Virginia Department of Agriculture, was to create a prototype.

"The whole idea is for us to take this trailer to a farmer's market so people can look at it and say, 'I can put something permanent like this on my property,'" says Robert "Bobby" Cheves, an Agriculture Teaching Instructor at Potomac State.

The trailer shows how small growers could harvest, clean, and package their fresh food in the fields and meet GHP/GAP standard at the same time. The WVDA would foot the bill. Potomac State would provide the young minds and hands to complete the task.

Jaclyn Cleaver, a freshman Animal Science major, was one of a handful of students who volunteered for the project.

"We looked up everything we could on washing trailers and there's nothing out there. It's the first of its kind. Google has nothing on this!"

Cheves was in charge of the project. However, from day one he made it clear this was in the hands of the students. They were given the grant summary in January, a $10,000 budget, and told to think big.

"Bobby let us come up with our own designs and then we pooled them all together and made one," explains Cleaver.

The original plan called for an 18x8 foot flatbed trailer. After searching high and low, the students had to settle for a 16x7, costing them valuable space and throwing their plan for a loop. They didn't miss a beat.

"We just had to work with the blueprints and shift some things around," explains Cleaver.

Miles Ridgeway, a sophomore Ag Education major, says the size of the trailer wasn't the only setback.

"It didn't take long to realize we weren't going to get all the materials we needed in a timely manner. So we pieced it together," he says. "We'd come down here once or twice a week and spend 2-3 hours. We built the tables, polyurethaned them, bolted down the generator, put u-bolts on the side. You name it, we did it. It was trial by error."

As Cheves walked around the almost finished product back in May, he admired the student's handiwork and explained how small farmers can use a portable trailer.

"The product will come in from the back end. We've got a hand washing stainless steel sink and we'll put the product in there to wash it. Then we have a drying rack," explains Cheves. "Farmers will be able to make a 180 and put their cleaned product on a polyurethaned table which will be the packaging area."

From there, the vegetables can be loaded into a vehicle and sent straight to market. By doing the cleaning and packaging themselves, the growers will end up with a product that's higher in value.

The washing station shows how small growers can harvest, clean and package their fresh foods from the fields and have them ready for market.

"They'll get a better price because it's truck to market. The farmers' markets and restaurants won't have to clean the vegetables. That takes out a step for them," according to Cheves.

The vegetable trailer also contains two salad spinners, a hot water tank, a small gray water tank, a pump, and an 8,000 watt portable generator.

Cheves brought in high school students from the Mineral County Vo-Tech program to help weld everything in place and finish up a few loose ends. The project came in under budget by about $500 and the trailer will be ready to hit the road this summer. However, the project isn't over. This was just step one.

"We're going to do a second trailer with adjustments. We need to see how it works and get feedback from growers. We'll start the next one in January of 2016," says Cheves.

It's been a roll-with-the-punches kind of project and Cheves couldn't be happier with the finished product. The students are pretty pumped, too.

Cleaver says they've created a set-up other groups can copy.

"They'll be Googling us now!"

For more information on the Mobile Vegetable Post Harvest Project, contact the WVDA at 304-558-3708.

Fallen, cont. from page 1

Others were there to do it for her.

"It means a lot to me that they care enough to remember and honor our fallen, not just mine but all of them," stressed Johnson.

Each tree is marked with dog tags so that families can come and visit. In two years, they'll be able to pick fruit from their loved one's tree. A bench will be placed just across the creek from the orchard where loved ones can sit and remember.

Neill said every time she looks out into her backyard, she'll be reminded of those brave men and women who served our country but never made it home.

USDA requires that cattle be officially identified before crossing state lines

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Animal Disease Traceability (ADT) rule states that effective March 11, cattle moved across state lines are required to be officially identified and accompanied by an interstate certificate of veterinary inspection (ICVI). Cattle affected by this rule include: sexually-intact beef cattle over 18 months of age, all dairy cattle, and all cattle being moved for shows, rodeos or other exhibitions.

Current exemptions to the rule include beef cattle under 18 months of age and cattle moving directly to a recognized slaughter establishment.

Official identification is an official ear tag. This can be either a metal NUES "brite" tag or a tag that bears a 15 digit identification number beginning with 840. The ear tag must also have the official ear tag shield imprinted on it. In order to purchase official ID tags, cattle owners must have a premise identification number.

For more information, contact Jonathan Taylor at 304-254-4022. For information on a Premise ID Number (PIN) contact Shelly Lantz at 304-558-2214.

Down on the Farm

The WVU Farm opened its gates to more than 2,000 children from across North Central West Virginia in late April and early May for Kiddie Days. The children, from toddlers to second graders, got the chance to see what goes on at a working farm. The little hands were able to pet a cow, hold a chick, and climb on a tractor. Students and faculty of the WVU Davis College of Agriculture served as tour guides and teachers to help the kids learn about the importance of farms, big and small.
