ROOTED
IN THE MOUNTAIN
STATE

West Virginia DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

WELCOME!

West Virginians take a lot of pride in their heritage. Our farmers and producers are no exception – although they certainly are exceptional.

Developed in 1986, West Virginia Grown was designed to market West Virginia grown and made products to consumers. By placing the West Virginia Grown logo on a product, they are assuring buyers that product was grown or processed, with quality ingredients, in the Mountain State.

As local food continues to grow in popularity and consumers turn to healthier, fresher options, branding your products as local will be vital to increasing potential market opportunities. We believe this program is an important component to helping grow and diversify our economy, as well as expand our local food systems throughout West Virginia. Our mission is to convey to the consumer that when they buy a West Virginia Grown product they are putting dollars right back into the communities we live in.

The branding around this program is simple – West Virginians pride themselves on their heritage and culture. We always rally around one another and never shy away from supporting our great state. It's that same pride we have tried to emulate through our West Virginia Grown program.

Agriculture has rich roots in the Mountain State, and we believe it will play a vital role in our future.

Semper Fi,

Kent A. Leonhardt
West Virginia Commissioner of Agriculture

The West Virginia Grown Program

WHO WE ARE

Developed in 1986, West Virginia Grown was designed to market products made right here in the Mountain State to consumers. By purchasing a West Virginia Grown product, buyers are assured the item was grown or processed in West Virginia.

We, at the West Virginia Department of Agriculture believe this program is an important component to helping grow and diversify our economy, as well as expand our local food systems throughout the state.

As local food continues to grow in popularity and consumers turn to healthier, fresher options, the West Virginia Grown program is essential to fostering growth within our own agribusinesses. By choosing a West Virginia Grown product, you are echoing that notion and highlighting agriculture's rich roots in the Mountain State and vital role in our future.

OUR MISSION

Our mission is to convey to the consumer that when they buy a West Virginia Grown product, they are buying a high-quality item and putting dollars right back into their local communities.

Rock Valley Farm Produce

It's all about produce at Rock Valley Farm. This sixth-generation operation loves making family memories together and providing quality produce at the same time. Some of that produce is grown in the farm's high tunnel, like their slicing and cherry tomatoes and slicing and pickling cucumbers. They pride themselves on getting produce to their consumers as quickly as possible. They also deliver to some local restaurants who enjoy providing their customers with the freshest, highest quality products around.

The Blended Homestead

The Blended Homestead is a labor of love for Eric Blend and his wife Brianna. They started the farm in 2015 because they wanted to know where their food was coming from. They say their customers want that knowledge too. They rotationally graze their animals, helping to rehabilitate their fields. Eric stresses everything on their farm works together, hence The Blended Homestead name.

Windswept Farm

Windswept Farm is nestled among wildflowers and fruit trees in the Northern Panhandle of West Virginia. John and Gail Welty have been working the farm for 20 years and added beehives 11 years ago. John, a certified master beekeeper, is retired and spends his days doing farm chores and tending to his 30-plus beehives. Windswept is a guaranteed naturally grown apiary. This ensures that their honey is ethically harvested, leaving enough behind to nourish the colony.
