Pure & Simple Sunset Farm

Pure and Simple Sunset Farm began in 2005 with a simple desire: to provide better quality food for a growing family. What started with a garden and a few chickens has grown into a small, sustainable farm with multiple gardens, a greenhouse, and livestock—all cared for using organic practices. Tracy, a master herbalist, cultivates a variety of herbs used to create the farm's best-selling product line: handcrafted herbal salves. Each salve is made in small batches by Tracy, her husband Chad, and their two daughters, Aliah and Myriah, using herbs grown on their farm. Today, Pure and Simple Sunset Farm offers these salves directly through their website and provides wholesale pricing to businesses. They are proud to support fellow West Virginia retailers and would love to work with local shops.

Ronk Family Maple Farm

Owner Paul Ronk began his maple journey with a friend in Ohio, and began to tap his own maple trees in 2015. He loves to produce pure maple syrup and is expanding to use the syrup in other products such as cotton candy, barbeque sauce and mustard. He and his family also make maple apple butter in an old copper kettle over an open fire. His 13 grandchildren get in on the fun and action. The farm also has two high tunnels to grow produce.

Products

Maple Syrup • Maple Apple Butter • Maple Spread
Maple Mustard • Maple BBQ Sauce • Maple Cotton Candy
Half Runner Beans • Tomatoes

Stiltner's Apiaries

Wade and his wife established their farm in 1990 while he was working in underground coal mines in eastern KY, though he had been keeping bees for several years, starting in high school as an FFA project. When he bought his farmland, he expanded his operation into a side business. He was blessed after leaving the coal mines to get employment at the WVDA doing apiary inspections until he retired. Today, he and his wife enjoy the pleasure of keeping bees as well as goats and chickens on their farm in Wayne County.

Stringtown Farm

Debbie Gue purchased the family farm in 2018. She started out with a small garden, and the business blossomed from there. She now grows her own vegetables and fruit and uses fresh-picked berries to make jellies and her own apples for apple butter. Her original goal was to provide a place where her grandkids could learn where food comes from, but the farm has grown into so much more. Debbie says, "The work is hard but so worth it!"

Products

Vegetables • Fruit • Jams • Jellies • Apple Butter
Hard Rock Candy • Cookies • Duck Eggs
